ICE ADVICE

Follow these hints to get the most out of ICE:

- Make sure the person whose name and number you provide has agreed to be your ICE partner.
- Make sure your ICE partner has a list of people they should contact on your behalf - including your place of work.
- Make sure your ICE partner's number is one that's easy to contact; for example, a home number could be useless in an emergency if the ICE partner works full-time.
- Make sure your ICE partner is aware of any medical conditions that could affect your emergency treatment - for example allergies or current medications.
- If you are under 18, your ICE partner should be a parent or guardian authorized to make decisions on your behalf; for example, if you need a life or death medical procedure.
- Make sure your ICE information is reviewed and updated periodically.
- ICE information will not be accessible to emergency services personnel if you activate your cell phone's security locking system.
- For multiple ICE contacts use ICE1, ICE2, ICE3,... to designate a contact order for emergency personnel.
- Should your preferred contact be deaf, prefix the number with ICETEXT.

In case of emergency, would the Police and Fire Departments know who to contact on your behalf?

Put ICE in your cell phone to help Fire and Police agencies render emergency services.
